Eastern Education Journal

For more than 40 years, the Eastern Education Journal has served as a forum for scholarly, research-based discourse dealing with contemporary issues in the field of education. In addition to providing opportunity for publication of research-based manuscripts, the Eastern Education Journal also encourages publication of strong position papers, original points of view, research summaries, program descriptions, book reviews, and other features related to education teacher preparation, and the professional development of both inservice and preservice teachers, as well as administrators.

The Eastern Education Journal is published annually by the College of Education and Professional Studies at Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, Illinois. It is a refereed journal and currently includes nine Editorial Board members representing diverse disciplines and areas of study. The Eastern Education Journal continuously strives to promote research and education-related commentary.
