Course Information Summary

Course (Prefix, Number, Title):
SPE 5133, Topics: Standards in Education

Course Description:
A study of the nature of standards in the provision of education to all students including students with disabilities. This course has implications for teaching, supervision, and educational service delivery for students in general and special education settings.

Pre-requisites/Co-requisites
Upper division or Graduate level standing in special education or a related field.

Required Text:
There is no one text that covers all of the historical and political content to be taught in this course. Therefore, readings consisting of various journal article on the topics included in this course can be purchased.

Support of Conceptual Framework:
Candidates’ knowledge and understanding of how standards impact the field of education is salient in the development of high-quality professionals that will function in today’s schools. Standards are a part of curriculum development, assessment, and personnel preparation. These are influenced by local, state, and federal mandates. Candidates need to have a working knowledge of how standards are developed, are used to guide program policies and practices, and are used to communicate amongst professionals. These all support the unit theme of “Educators as Creators of Effective Educational Environments.”

Diverse Subjects: Each content area possesses a set of distinct standards of which an educator must be aware and knowledgeable. Understanding core concepts, knowledge, and skills for various content areas as delineated by the standards allows the educator to effectively design lessons and units which prioritize learning experiences, link subjects, and promote a deep understanding.

Diverse Strategies: Effective educators possess a number of strategies which can be utilized to present and explore skills and concepts. By incorporating these strategies with curriculum that is aligned to standards and thus considered essential, teachers can assist students in better retention and application.

Diverse Students: Standards were devised to focus students’ learning on the skills and concepts all students should know. However, differences in students often require adapted approaches to meet and/or assess the standard to determine proficiency or areas in need of improvement. The effective educator recognizes the role diversity plays in schools, how individualized programs can work in accordance with standards, and understands the appropriate use of alternate routes to meet the standards.

Diverse Societies and Communities: The effective educator understands how local and district norms influence the interpretation of national and state level standards. In addition, the alignment of the school improvement process with community goals/needs is considered important.

Diverse Technologies: Effective educators are familiar with the technology standards for teachers and consistently utilize technology to plan and present information as well as to manage data related to school improvement.

Methods of Instruction:

CEC Advanced Content Standards (CEC AC)
Advanced Standard 1: Leadership and Policy

Special educators in advanced programs learn to use their deep understanding of the history of special education, current legal and ethical standards, and emerging issues to provide leadership. Special educators promote high professional self-expectations and help others understand the needs of individuals with exceptional learning needs. They advocate for educational policy based on solid evidence-based knowledge to support high quality education for individuals with exceptional learning needs. As appropriate to their role, they advocate for appropriate resources to ensure that all personnel involved have effective preparation. Special educators use their knowledge of the needs of different groups in a pluralistic society to promote evidence-based practices and challenging expectations for individuals with exceptional learning needs. They model respect for all individuals and ethical practice. They help to create positive and productive work environments and celebrate accomplishments with colleagues. They mentor others and promote high expectations for themselves, other professionals, and individuals with exceptional learning needs.

Advanced Standard 2: Program Development & Organization
Special educators apply their knowledge of cognitive science, learning theory, and instructional technologies to improve instructional programs. They advocate for a continuum of program options and services to ensure the appropriate instructional supports for individuals with exceptional learning needs. They help design and deliver, as appropriate to their role, ongoing results-oriented professional development designed to support the use of evidenced-based practices at all relevant organizational levels. They use their understanding of the effects of cultural, social, and economic diversity and variations of individual development to inform their development of programs and services for individuals with exceptional learning needs. Special educators continuously broaden and deepen their professional knowledge, and expand their expertise with instructional technologies, curriculum standards, effective teaching strategies, and assistive technologies to support access to learning. They use their deep understanding of how to coordinate educational standards to the needs of individuals with exceptional learning needs to help all individuals with exceptional learning needs to access challenging curriculum standards.

Advanced Standard 3: Research & Inquiry
Research and inquiry inform the decisions of special educators who have completed advanced programs in guiding professional practice. Special educators know models, theories, philosophies, and research methods that form the basis for evidence-based practices in special education. This knowledge includes information sources, data collection, and data analysis strategies. Special educators evaluate the appropriateness of research methodologies in relation to practices presented in the literature. They use educational research to improve instructional techniques, intervention strategies, and curricular materials. They foster an environment supportive of continuous instructional improvement, and engage in the design and implementation of action research. Special educators are able to use the literature to resolve issues of professional practice, and help others to understand various evidence-based practices.

Advanced Standard 4: Student and Program Evaluation
Evaluation is critical to advanced practice of special educators. Underlying evaluation is the knowledge of systems and theories of educational assessment and evaluation, along with skills in the implementation of evidence-based practices in assessment. Effective special educators design and implement research activities to evaluate the effectiveness of instructional practices and, as appropriate to their role, to assess progress toward the organizational vision, mission, and goals of their programs. It is critical in evaluation that nonbiased assessment procedures are used in the selection of assessment instruments, methods, and procedures for both programs and individuals.

With respect to evaluation of individuals, special educators prepared at the advanced level are able to apply their knowledge and skill to all stages and purposes of evaluation including: prereferral and screening, preplacement for special education eligibility, monitoring and reporting learning progress in the general education curriculum and other individualized educational program goals.

Advanced Standard 5: Professional Development and Ethical Practice
Special educators are guided by the professional ethics and practice standards. Special educators have responsibility for promoting the success of individuals with exceptional learning needs, their families, and colleagues. They create supportive environments that safeguard the legal rights of students and their families. They model and promote ethical and professional practice. Special educators plan, present, and evaluate professional development, as appropriate to their roles, based on models that apply adult learning theories and focus on effective practice at all organizational levels. Special educators model their own commitment to continuously improving their own professional practice by participating in professional development themselves.
