

THREE NEWTON YOUTHS ACCEPTED IN U. S. NAVY

Aug. 14 1942
Effingham, August 10.—Newton's first enlistments in the United States Naval Reserve for several weeks were reported this week by the Navy Recruiting Station in Effingham, which is enabling men of selective service age to take advantage of the Navy's numerous trades.

The enlistments include Walter Clinton Mosser, 19, William Beverlin Robards, 21, and James Earl Wilson Jr., 20, all of Newton, which indicates the response to this paper's co-operation in the nation-wide drive to enlist manpower for this country's expanded and vital two-ocean Navy.

Mosser and Robards were enlisted with a rating of carpenter's mate, third class, in V-6 of the United States Naval Reserve, and young Wilson was inducted as an apprentice seaman in class V-6 which will entitle him to apply for one of the Navy's trade schools, while taking his recruit training. All are now stationed at Great Lakes.

These men recently passed their preliminary examination at the Navy Recruiting Station in Effingham and were then sent to St. Louis, where they passed their final examinations and were sworn in. Following completion of their recruit training, they will have an opportunity to come home on a nine day furlough.
