Corporal William Dulgar writes from Pomona, California: "I thought I'd better write to you and have you to change the address on my Press. My new address is: Corporal William Dulgar, Thirteenth General hospital, A. P. O. 180, Care Postmaster, Los Angeles, California.

"I certainly do enjoy the Press. It's just like receiving a letter from home. "With the Colors" is the first place I always turn to and then to the rest of the paper.

"I'm a cook here in the hospital. We have a 2,000 bed general hospital. We get patients from the desert training area, with broken necks on down. At the present we're feeding 850 regular diet patients and 420 diet patients.

"This is Sunday afternoon and I'm having dinner in town with my wife. It's nice not to have to eat my own cooking once in a while. I'd better sign off, dinner is almost ready.

"I got a letter from my brother, Bob Dulgar, yesterday. He is in the Engineers in New York. My other brother, Harry Dulgar Jr., is in the Cavalry in South Carolina."

Corporal Harold K. Lambert writes his grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Lambert of Rose Hill vicinity, from Camp Beale, California: "I'm on the night shift at the Station hospital here. It seems nothing ever happens here, just the same old thing day after day. I've been promoted to corporal. I feel like a private but it will mean a little more money and I'll have to be good or I'll lose my stripes.

"The colonel said he thought we would be moving about the last of this month. I don't know where or when, so we'll just have to wait and see."

His address is Corporal Harold K. Lambert, 348th Station hospital, Barracks 4, Camp Beale, California.

Private Fay G. Bixler, who is in the British isles with the Army Air Forces, writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bixler of near Lis: "I received your letter today and can hardly believe that hay harvest is over and that you're threshing now.

"I'm writing everyone I know today and everyone ought to be happy. I spent the week end at the home of some British friends here and they even brought in my breakfast in bed. I've never been treated with such hospitality since I left home. We hope to have this thing all cleared up soon but will just have to bide our time about it. This is a bigger job than it sounds."
