

Announce Two

Business Changes

in Newton

Jan. 22, 1943

Two business changes in Newton were announced this week. Norman D. Cunningham of Oblong has purchased Dillman's Grocery from J. O. Dillman of this city, effective Tuesday, and Dorris L. Sims has succeeded Fred M. Sims as owner of the Sims Furniture Store.

Mr. Cunningham, who is proprietor of the Oblong Food Center at Oblong is now in active charge of the store, although Mr. and Mrs. Dillman will remain for a couple of weeks to assist in caring for the business. He will call the store the Newton Food Center, but stated Thursday that he had not yet selected a manager.

Has New Stock

Mr. Sims, who is assistant cashier of the First National Bank, has been interested in the furniture business before and has secured new stock. The business will be managed by Don Bower for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillman have made many friends since they moved to Newton from Willow Hill and people here will be sorry to see them leave. They plan to secure defense jobs.

Fred Sims will secure a defense job, probably at Evansville, but will continue to make his home here. He has been engaged in business with his father, R. T. Sims, for a number of years and has been quite successful.

Roscoe Hicks has sold his store at Gila to a Casey man, George Staley, the latter is closing the stock out.
