

RAYMOND SNYDER CAMP CAGE STAR

3-29-45

The "News Wing" official newspaper of the 113th Army Air Force Unit, Charleston, S. C., in a recent issue really gave attention to the fine work of Raymond Snyder, Newton soldier, for his performance on the camp's basketball team.

A two-column picture of young Snyder was described as follows: "This unusual photograph of big Ray Snyder, Flyer Center, presents an entirely new picture of the six feet five star. The only time a cameraman might catch him would be at time-out periods. He is considered the work-horse of the club and any fan who has seen him perform will agree. Snyder is one of the high scorers of the nation."

Raymond, who is also quite popular in baseball at the camp, will be remembered by most of the sport fans in Newton as the boy who had such an outstanding record as a softball pitcher for the Waggy Nighthawks and who has an equally enviable record as pitcher for the N. C. H. S. Eagles baseball team that won the district championship the year he did the hurling.
