

Notes on Contributors

Shahbaz Ahmad Cheema is Assistant Professor in the University Law College at the University of the Punjab in Lahore, Pakistan. He received his Ph.D. from the School of Law, University of Warwick in the United Kingdom in 2011. His areas of interest are Islamic law and gender.

Sookja Cho is Assistant Professor at Arizona State University. Her research focuses on pre-modern Korean and Chinese literature, Sino-Korean cultural exchange, and gender in religious and folk literature. She holds doctoral degrees in literature from Washington University in St. Louis and Seoul National University.

Kai-wing Chow is Professor of history and East Asian languages and cultures at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. He is the author of Publishing, Culture, and Power in Early Modern China (2004) and The Rise of Confucian Ritualism in Late Imperial China (1994) both published by Stanford University Press.

Rustin Gates is Associate Professor of history at Bradley University in Peoria, Illinois. He received his Ph.D. from Harvard University. A specialist in the history of Japanese international relations, his research has appeared in The Journal of Japanese Studies and Modern Asian Studies.

Greg P. Guelcher is Professor of history at Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa. His research interests focus on Japanese imperialism and colonialism in China, and his publications include “Paradise Lost: Japan’s Agricultural Colonists in Manchuria” in Japanese Diasporas: Unsung Pasts, Conflicting Presents and Uncertain Future (Routledge, 2006).

Geoff Harkness is Assistant Professor of sociology at Morningside College. He holds his Ph.D. from Northwestern University. His research focuses on culture, stratification, and the Middle East. He is the author of Chicago Hustle and Flow: Gangs, Gangsta Rap, and Social Class (University of Minnesota Press, 2014).

Robert E. Hegel is Liselotte Dieckmann Professor of Comparative Literature and Professor of Chinese in East Asian languages and cultures at Washington University in St. Louis. His research includes the study of narratives, their production, and reception in late Imperial China.

Sawyer Middleleer is a senior undergraduate double-majoring in history and Chinese at Carleton College in Northfield, Minnesota. He is the winner of the 2015 Mikiso Hane undergraduate student paper prize awarded by the Midwest Conference on Asian Affairs.

David G. Nelson is Associate Professor of history at California Lutheran University. He specializes in medieval and early modern Japanese cultural and institutional history. His research interests include crime and punishment in the context of the centralization of authority in seventeenth-century castle town administration.

Truong Van Mon (Sakaya) is Lecturer of anthropology at the National University of Vietnam in Ho Chi Minh City. His publications focus on the culture, religion, and history of the Cham people. His current research interests include comparative studies of the Cham and other South and Southeast Asian cultures.